ENCOURAGING PARTICIPATION

Bernards strives to promote economic opportunity for local residents and businesses – whether accessing job opportunities or receiving training – that are situated in the vicinity of our projects.

We have undertaken the following specific activities to work with local trade unions and subcontractors to maximize local worker participation:

- Conduct outreach workshops for Disadvantaged Business Enterprises (DBEs) to provide information about the project and our subcontractor bidding process
- Contact local subcontractors, material suppliers, and service providers who are listed in our comprehensive database developed specifically for the municipalities where our projects are located
- Incorporate a geographical boundary into the Bernards master subcontractor database, then send out invitations through the online "BidMail" service
- Utilize The Southern California Blue Book online services to review hundreds of CSI categories related labor, materials, or services and then sort them for specific area boundaries
- List with California builder's exchanges in the specific area markets where our projects are located

We consistently exceed our client's diversity goals and requirements.
